

South Region Conservation Network

“The South Region Conservation Network (SRCN) is a network of individuals working in the field of heritage conservation in South England, sharing a common interest and purpose in the dissemination of information regarding to all aspects of conservation.”

Objectives:

- To share information, knowledge, experience, skills and idea
- To facilitate internal and external communication and collaboration
- To share information on new initiatives
- To promote and maintain high standards of conservation practice among members
- To hear about new products/ services within the field
- To help raise awareness of conservation in the community

The group visiting SeaCity in Southampton – Sept 2014

General Information

- Started in March 2014
- Co-ordinated by Dr. Eleanor Schofield (Conservation Manager, Mary Rose Trust)
- Meetings twice a year at various locations
- Dedicated LinkedIn Group to share information
- For more information contact Eleanor on e.schofield@maryrose.org