

FIVE REASONS WHY YOUR MUSEUM SHOULD DO ARTS AWARD

- 1 It's simple! The flexible framework fits around your learning and outreach programmes.
- 2 It brings in new visitors. Children and young people come back with their family and friends.
- 3 It connects you with others running Arts Award – including schools, youth clubs, scout groups and arts organisations, all looking for activities which relate to Arts Award.
- 4 It strengthens young people's voice within your museum, giving you new insights and fresh ideas. It can develop existing work with young people, or kick start something new.
- 5 It's rewarding to the museum and the young people. You help young people gain new skills and a qualification, and they get certificates. National accreditation is valuable – and you can use this achievement to show funders your impact.

WHAT MUSEUMS SAY:

'Some of the young people hadn't visited the museum before, and it was fantastic to see their journey from non-visitor to expert, relating the objects' hidden stories to other visitors.'

Leeds City Museum

'Arts Award is a tool for motivating partners. It gives a focus for your work.'

London Transport Museum

'It is rewarding to be able to support young people to learn new skills, and to see the pride they take in their work and in achieving an Arts Award.'

Orleans House Gallery, Richmond

'The massive benefit of Arts Award is that it is flexible, adaptable and actually worth something to the young people when it comes to gaining a place at college.'

Towner, Eastbourne

WHAT YOUNG PEOPLE SAY:

'I am proud of my portfolio because I would never have thought that I would come up with so many creative ideas.'

'I feel more confident about asking questions, and can discuss images and artefacts without worrying about giving the wrong or invalid answer. I realise my opinions are important and are considered.'

'I think Arts Award made me and the other children closer and we are all a lot more friendly towards each other, which is nice.'

'If it wasn't for Arts Award, I would still be confused about career opportunities and would not have been able to teach others. One of the greatest feelings of the experience was passing on what I learnt to others.'
